FORya

A COLLABORATION

Prepared for [creator name]

We'd love you to make one piece of content with us. Here's who we are and exactly what we're asking for.

[@HANDLE]

[MONTH 2026]

We've been watching your feed for a while.

[One or two sentences, written by you, about this specific creator — a post you liked, why their audience fits, what made you pick them. Keep it true and keep it short. This is the only part of the deck they'll know was written for them.]

We're a small London team building FORya*, and we're asking a handful of creators to show it in their own voice rather than ours.

No script, no shot list, no approval committee. One video, a few Stories, paid properly. The next few pages cover the whole thing.

FOR*ya* plans the outfit, so you don't have to.

You tell the app what you've got on — a dinner, an interview, a wedding in a field in October. It reads the date, the place and the weather, looks at what's already in your wardrobe, and builds the whole look.

01

It starts with the plan

Not a feed to scroll. You put in the thing you're actually going to, and the outfit comes back around it.

02

It uses what you own

Photograph clothes from your own wardrobe and they become part of every future look. The cut-out happens on your phone.

03

It shows you the gap

If a piece is missing, it tells you what it costs and where to get it. You buy from the retailer, not from us.

Real catalogues from brands you already shop.

FORya isn't a mood board. The pieces in it come from live retail catalogues, with real prices and real stock, connected directly to the app.

M&S	JOHN LEWIS	MYTHERESA	[brand]	[brand]

More joining through the autumn. You can say the app works with connected catalogues from these retailers — please don't say they sponsor or endorse it, because that's a different thing and not one we've claimed.

One real Moment from your week.

THE IDEA WE HAD FOR YOU

[the angle, in a line]

[Two or three sentences describing the specific video you'd like from this creator. Pick one of the four below, or write your own around something already in their diary.]

If something else fits you better, take it. These are the four that work best:

- I've got a thing on Friday. A real plan, three questions, a finished outfit.
- The wardrobe already knows. You photograph six things you own and it builds from them.
- And then it rained. The forecast turns, the outfit changes with it.
- Planned it last night. A get-ready-with-me where the deciding already happened.

One video, a few Stories, and the raw files.

DELIVERABLE	DETAIL	DUE
Feed video	20–40 seconds, vertical 9:16, posted to both TikTok and Instagram Reels. The same cut is fine; write each caption however suits the platform.	[date]
Stories	Three to five frames using the app, with the link sticker on the last one.	[date]
Raw footage	Your unedited clips and screen recordings, in one folder.	[date]
Usage	Permission for us to run the video as a paid ad on TikTok and Meta for [60] days. Included in the fee.	–

Send a draft and we'll come back within 48 hours with notes, once. If we're slower than that, post it anyway.

Shoot it the way you'd shoot anything.

- Open on the plan, not the app. "I've got a wedding in nine days and nothing that works" is a better first line than anything about us.
- Show your real screen. Screen-record on your own phone, and leave it slow enough to read.
- Your room beats a studio. Natural light, normal mess, no production.
- One idea per video. Two features is one too many.
- End on the outfit. Wearing it is the proof — the logo isn't.
- Sound like yourself. We'll never send you a line to read. If a phrase in this deck doesn't sound like you, cut it.

Two small things to keep accurate, because they're the ones people assume: there's no checkout in the app — you buy from the retailer — and it only knows the clothes you've actually added, not your whole wardrobe. We also call them Moments, never events or occasions.

Label it as an ad. Right at the start.

- #ad as the first thing in the caption — not after a line break, not down in the hashtags.
- Turn on the paid partnership tool on both TikTok and Instagram.
- Say it on screen too, in the first few seconds.
- Every Story frame, not just the first.

That's the whole requirement

You almost certainly do this already. It's in the contract because UK rules put the responsibility on both of us, and we'd rather it be boring and clear than a conversation later.

Paid properly, and on time.

ITEM	TERMS	AMOUNT
Content fee	For the video and the Stories, whatever the numbers turn out to be. No performance bonus, and nothing clawed back.	`[ £fee ]`
Usage	Paid social for `[ 60 ]` days. Longer only by a new agreement and a new fee.	`[ £usage ]`
Payment	Half on signing, half within `[ 14 ]` days of posting. Invoice to Decusatio Ltd.	–
If it's not for you	Try it for a week, decide it isn't your thing, tell us — we pay the content fee for your time and nothing goes out.	`Full fee`

The content stays yours. We won't ask you to take it down when the campaign ends.

If you're in,
just reply to this email.

Write to

[partnerships@forya.app]

Tell us which angle you'd take, or the better idea you had instead. A paragraph is plenty, and we'll get you access the same day.

Have a look first

forya.onrender.com

If it doesn't move you, it won't move your audience either — and we'd both rather know that now.